Rum / Cachaça

Rum can be very diverse depending on the factors affecting the raw ingredients, distillation, again and blending. This is why we get so many different types of rum, white, golden, dark, spiced or over proof.

The first distillation of rum took place in the 17th Century, on the sugar plantations of the Caribbean.

It was discovered that by fermenting molasses which is one of the by-products of refining sugar, alcohol could be created.

Vodka

The Origin of Vodka has long been disputed across Russia and Poland, both claiming this fantastic innovation as their own.

Each offers an explanation of the derivation of the word 'Vodka.'

*The Russians claim the name evolved from the phrase 'Zhiznennia Voda,' meaning 'water of life.'

*The Polish story is somewhat different, claiming the name Vodka evolved from the word 'Wódka.'

Sounds fair enough...

Whisky

The name whiskey is derived from the Gaelic term 'uisge-beatha' meaning 'water of life.' The art of distilling whiskey most likely began in Ireland. Although the Scots are quick to point out that they may have been making whiskey long before. It is important to note the different spellings of the word Whisk(e)y.

Tequila

Tequila is named after the town of the same name located about forty miles west of Guadalajara in the state of Jalisco. Mexico. It was the Aztec Indians who first fermented the juice of the Agave Azul plant to produce their ceremonial wine 'Pulque.' In 1519, when the Spanish conquered Mexico, soldiers discovered that this juice could be distilled to make Tequila, therefore, it can be said the Spanish brought tequila to Mexico.
